

THE CANCER INDUSTRY

by Ralph W. Moss Ph.D

Ralph W. Moss is the author of Cancer Therapy, Questioning Chemotherapy, and the Award Winning PBS documentary, The Cancer War. He also authored the first article on alternative medicine for the Encyclopedia Britannica Medical Yearbook. Formerly the assistant director of public affairs at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, Moss serves as a member of the Alternative Medicine Program Advisory Council of the National Institutes of Health. He also serves as an advisor on cancer to several major medical centers investigation alternative medicine.

"A classic expose... Exceptionally well written... Highly recommended..."
Library Journal

"Moss brings heavy guns to bear against the cancer establishment.... He carefully sights sources as he assembles documentation that adds up to a blistering attack."
Publishers Weekly

"Moss is a very tough act. He delivers his argument with low-keyed logic and a slow careful building-up of facts. It is this very calmness, ultimately, that gives his word their ring of commanding urgency. Riveting!"
Denver Post

"Without a doubt this is one of the most unsettling books of the decade."
West Coast Review of Books

"An enlightening account of the repressive efforts that exist in the cancer establishment....Moss's assessments are startling in their revelations of irresponsibility and duplicity."
Choice

"This a shocking, disturbing book, a muckraking book in the best sense, which should be widely read."
Baltimore Evening Sun

"One of the most revealing books ever published on the fatality, ineptitude and money-waste of cancer research and the consequence human suffering and death."
Health Freedom News
